Vandals Hit Westlake School; Cause $3500 Damage

ONE SECTION OF the several hundred feet of louvers bent and broken by the rampaging vandals that did $3500 damage to the Westlake school is shown here. Damage to the costly aluminum louvers was numbered among the more serious wrought on the school property.

VANDALISM UNHEEDED NEARLY TWO WEEKS

What was described as "one of the worst acts of vandalism" ever to take place in the Daly City area was brought to light this week at the Westlake school.

The culprits, believed to be teen-agers, dispersed their destruction over the entire school area, wreaking some $3500 in damage, insurance investigators report.

The damage was not revealed until fully two weeks after the vandalism had taken place, according to local police.

Local officers had not even heard of the school's mutilation until Monday of this week, when summoned by Peter Markovich, local insurance man.

Markovich was notified on Monday by Fred Schweickhardt, director of education, who said that one of the custodians reported "quite a bit of damage" at the modern rambling-type elementary school in the Westlake subdivision.

Other minor damage was also uncovered at the district's newest school, Benjamin Franklin, in Broadmoor. Extent of the destruction there was estimated at about $175.

Inspector August Benassini and Officer Robert Crocker have been detailed on an all-out investigation of the costly vandalism at the two schools, according to Police Chief Roland Petrocchi.

Hardly a single room or hallway at the Westlake school went untouched.

In the new multi-use room, which has never been used, a $400 piano was broken up, 18 new desks were defaced with deep scratches, windows were broken, blackboards were cut up and sundry other damage was inflicted on the room, in addition to paper being strewn throughout.

The hoodlums gained entry through an upper window in the room.

The costly aluminum louvers around the building were bent or broken at distances of about every 15 feet. Approximately 10 glass doors, valued at $62 each, were smashed. Faucets were clogged up, holes were punched in building exteriors, and putty was dug out of nearly every window.

One window was even removed entirely from the scene, leading to the belief that the "work" was not done by young children.

Meanwhile, some effort to discover the agencies or parties responsible for allowing the destruction to continue over an extended period is underway.

However, H. Z. Weibel, superintendent of the elementary district, exonerated the recreation department. The department has been using school playground facilities since July, but only during the day.

City Administrator Dan Anderson disclosed that he intends to discover who was lax in allowing such activities to be carried out under cover.

Local Lions Allocate $2400 For Projects

The Daly City-Colma Lions club publicity committee this week announced that a $2400 budget has been set for the coming year's community activities.

The money will go towards paying for youngsters' scholarships, Boy and Girl Scout activities, summer camps and Christmas activities.

Beacher Barg's Meeting With "Goof" Costs $125

Beacher O. Barg, the 29-year-old, 5-foot 11-inch, 200-pound seaman who claimed he met some "goof" last week and was forced to turn in a false fire alarm, traveled to South San Francisco this Monday and got acquainted with Municipal Judge Thomas L. Bocci.

Judge Bocci presented Barg with a suspended sentence of 25 days and placed him on one year's probation. Barg, who officer John Van, Otten reported "had been drinking" paid $25 for having been apprehended in that particular state.

His encounter with the "goof" proved more costly yet since Judge Bocci levied a $100 fine for turning the false alarm.

Runswick Extension Work May Resume Within 30 Days — Gaagero

Work on the Gaagero extension may resume within 30 days according to Mayor A. J. Gaggero. Gaggero said that the city council is waiting for John A. Blume to conclude necessary plans to finish the extension. The council must approve these plans before Blume is given the go-ahead.

Speeder Cited After Striking Automobile

C. G. Brownlow, a passenger in the car of Coy Kenneth Mitchell, was thrown to the pavement this week, when the Mitchell automobile was struck by a car driven by Guy Henry Coon at the intersection of East Moltke and Mission streets.

Officer James Baird rushed Brownlow to the Junipero Serra hospital where he was given emergency treatment and released.

According to the report filed by Baird, the Mitchell car was turning off of Mission on to East Moltke when the Coon car struck it and turned it completely around throwing Brownlow clear.

Coon, driver of the other car, stated that at the time of the impact he was driving 30 miles per hour. Officer Baird gave him a speeding citation for this admission since it is a 25 mile zone.

Special Meeting Of Commission Is Due -- Vickers

A special meeting of the Daly City Planning Commission will be held in the near future Sanford Vickers, secretary predicted this week.

According to Vickers, a plan of subdivision must be presented to the city council in the near future in compliance with an act of the state legislature which goes into effect on September 9.

Vickers said that he expects John Bertetta, chairman of the Planning Commission, to call the meeting some time next week.

THE TOWN RECORD

By MONTE DAYTON

A couple of discontented Daly City kids were seen in SF this week, suitcases in hand.

Asked for what parts they were headed, the wayfarers answered, "We are running away from home."

Don't know how far they got, but the accelerating weight of the suitcases appeared to be tolling the balance in favor of the home fires.

MARIO LUCCHESI, former butcher at the Hilltop mkt., is now "living it up" at "The Lodge," at Clear Lake Highlands, of which he is now part owner.

Hilltopper Head Clerk LAUREN CHEDA and his tribe visited Mario recently on their vacation, reporting that everything is kosher with the former Daly Cityite.

Another butcher, DAN RADOVICH, of the Market Basket (opposite side of the street) is resting up at Lake Tahoe, which is somewhat of a mecca for Daly Citizens as of recent.

Maybe he'll run into high school sup STAN HANNAH.

The next Daly City traffic block (please call them "checks," the local coppers say) will be something new and pleasing, this reporter has learned.

The event will be announced in advance, with necessary accompanying publicity, so as not to ire owners of the defective vehicles.

I can just see the citations now: "The Daly City police department beseeches that you kindly make amends for the minor defections which you so generously allowed us to detect at our recent traffic check. Yours for no hard feelings."

The money sack containing $60 which Mrs. Lila Harris attempted to steal from the Market Basket grocery, 6318 Mission street, will cost her $450 or she will spend 40 days as the guest of the authorities, Municipal Judge Thomas L. Bocci decided in his South San Francisco court room last week.

Arrested on June 16th by Officer Hank Sundermann of the Daly City police, Mrs. Harris was given until August 16th to decide which of the alternatives she will choose.

C Of C Will Hear Tormey At Next Week's Meeting

Pete Markovich, member of the board of directors of the Daly City Chamber of Commerce, announced this week that the next general meeting of the organization will be held at 12 o'clock noon on August 20 at the Lake Merced Country Club.

According to Markovich, the guest speaker for the meeting will be James Tormey, superintendent of schools for San Mateo county. Topic of Tormey's speech will be "Every Home Is A Liability." In his speech, Tormey will outline the use of tax monies for educational purposes, Markovich said.

SERENI TRIAL IS SET FOR SEPT. 10

Marino "Ted" Sereni, local used car dealer, must appear in the court of Judge Edward Ryan of the southern municipal district on September 10 to answer charges by the Belmont police for violation of the State of California deadly weapons act.

According to deputy district attorney Howard Hartney, Sereni is charged with having concealed upon his person a Smith & Wesson revolver No. 362973 without a permit for the gun. Sereni pleaded not guilty to the charge in a court appearance Monday.

Belmont police claim that they arrested Sereni near the Cornaglia Automobile Co. He is alleged to have threatened to kill Steve Cornagli, the proprietor of the company and a former partner.

WESTLAKE PARK AREA CLEARANCE BID GETS OKAY FROM COUNCIL

The 10-acre Westlake park area will be cleared of trees for $1200. A bid of that amount was accepted from F. Jencke Co. of Mountain View at Tuesday night's adjourned meeting of the city council.

The Santa Clara county firm's bid was $295 lower than that of Doelger and $550 less than D. Fontana and Sons.

City council members awarded the bid after ascertaining that the certified check representing 10 per cent of the bid accompanied the F. Jencke Co. submission.

COLMA RESIDENTS ASK $6000 DAMAGES FROM DOELGER FIRM

Five Colma homeowners have filed suit for $6000 and an injunction to halt excavation being done near their homes by Henry Doelger Builder, Inc.

The complaint, filed in Superior court in Redwood City last week, charges that excavation work and truck traffic has polluted the air with dust and caused $1200 damage to each home.

At press time, however, the work was still in progress.

The complainants, Ruth Stucky, Dorothy O'Hare, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Fitzpatrick and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wahler, are represented by Attorney Eugene Gartland of San Francisco.

IT'S A GREAT DAY FOR MISS DORIS OTTOBONI

Joyous greetings came this week to pretty Doris Ottoboni, 23-year-old secretary at Jefferson Union high school.

Sunday night, via a phone call from a newspaper, she learned that her fiancée, Cpl. Umberto Capurro Jr., 24, prisoner of the Reds since October, 1951, was coming home.

Miss Ottoboni had been corresponding with Capurro during his imprisonment, to the tune of more than 100 letters, each written in the hope that it would be the last and the next communication would be spoken.

Two months ago Capurro proposed to the local girl. She accepted. "As soon as he returns," she said, "we will make plans for our marriage."

Miss Ottoboni, who resides at 210 92nd avenue, Colma, said, "I kept praying and believing my prayers would be answered." They were.

The couple met four years ago and, since then, Miss Ottoboni has always "thought a great deal of him."

It is not known as yet whether Capurro is aboard the first ship that left Korea loaded with ex-prisoners of war.

However, Capurro, a South San Franciscan, sent a telegram to his dad Monday, informing him he was "Well and should be on a ship soon."

If he is aboard the first POW ship, he should be home about August 24.

Meanwhile, an all-out north county public reception for Capurro and his bride-to-be is underway. (Continued on Page 2)

"Delinquency" -- $3500 Worth

The punks have done it again.

Following closely upon the ransacking of the community center, perpetrated by a bunch of youthful hoodlums apparently lacking in brain matter, the Westlake school has been mutilated to the tune of $3500 by another gang of what social thinkers describe moronically as "juvenile delinquents."

With the occurrence of such insane acts as breaking windows for pure joy, busting up pianos, and digging putty out of windows, it is time to take a fresh look at the freaks that have so long hidden under the name of poor misguided kiddies.

Pranks on Halloween, jests that put the superintendent of schools into a howling furor, send teachers home in a state of apoplexy, and such wholesome comedy on the part of kids has long been countenanced because everybody knows that's part of being a kid. It's fun.

But the acts of destruction brought to light this week, and the recent ransacking of the community center stand in a class all alone.

Social thinking is out of whack when the thinkers try to remedy such activity by sending home notes to mother, teaching the kiddies the constitution, and otherwise turning the other cheek and writing it off as "bad upbringing."

We believe the bone-heads who pull such destructive stunts should be chastised to the extent that the memory of the act would, in itself, bring nothing but repentance. The way to do this is not through social medicine, but through the good old fashioned hickory stick, or any weapon of comparative authority.

It might not correct the missing link in the brains of these nincompoops, but, at least, it would serve as a highly persuasive factor.

At the same time, while such ignorant destruction is being wreaked, it might do well to investigate parties responsible for allowing the wholesale mutilation.

It was easy to ascertain, after reviewing the scene of damage, that such activity had been going on over a period of weeks.

And, yet, the act wasn't brought to light until this week.

Certainly, a structure such as the Westlake school is valuable enough that some spot check might be made from time to time to protect "the goods."

Apparently, none was made.

The multi-use room, valued at several thousand dollars, had never been used. We believe a property such as this bears watching, at least occasionally.

Four groups should actually bear responsibility in the matter—the elementary school district, the police, the recreation department, and, lastly, the residents of the area.

We mention the last because such occurrences could be prevented if Average Citizen would immediately report any "off-color" activities.

The damage done at the Westlake school, by its nature, couldn't have been carried out in sheer silence.

If residents would bear in mind that, directly or indirectly, this bust-up is coming out of their pockets, they might be a little more alert.

At the same time, the district, the police and the commission should bear some of the brunt of the responsibility.

We are not pinning down any one agency as responsible for preventing this act, but believe an investigation should be carried out to do so.

As long as there's going to be cretin-minded individuals who delight in such idiocy, measures should be taken to at least prevent recurrences.

It's very foolish and, what worse, it's taking cash—right out of your pocket.

Slowing Up The Process

Another instance of persons failing to notify proper authorities was uncovered this week when it was revealed that an armed robbery had occurred in Broadmoor July 19, while the police there didn't learn of it until August 3.

The man in question, who was "relieved" of some $1200 at the point of a gun, said he was "confused and afraid to call."

The matter came to light when the San Francisco police got on the trail of some suspicious youth. One had in his possession $600.

While, in this case, it was fortunate that the parties were picked up, a lapse of two weeks can many times leave the trail of law-breakers cold.

Any citizens who, in the future, lose a cool $12000 clams, would do well to report the catastrophe to police, post haste.

My righteousness I hold fast, and will not let it go; my heart shall not reproach me so long as I live. (Job 27:6.)

The man who refuses or neglects to live righteously may fool himself and others some of the time—but he cannot for a moment fool his conscience which is forever within him, to speak in the still of the night. He who lives within God, however, lives without fear.

MY MAD WORLD

by Leonore Brewer

It has now been six months since I first picked up my typewriter and trudged off down the road in search of those of you who could be enticed into my world. And a d—d lonely road it has been. Perched on a convenient hummock, chatting to myself week after week, I have the impression my words are dropping down a well. There's only one difference—no splash.

As I gazed on that magical page that contained my first column, I could visualize the astonishment of my neighbors, and could hear my appearance being greeted with wild cries of "Author, author!" Planning a few modest words in reply, I drifted out into the patio, certain that I presented an unflattering picture of one unaware of coming glory. Awaiting the plaudits of my neighbors, I pulled out flowers and casually threw them over the fence and tenderly watered weeds. But where was the thunderous applause? Where was the long line of fellow dwellers in the world of music, waiting to clasp a kindred soul to their bosoms? I don't know where they were, but I can tell you where they aren't.

Well, the weeks drifted by and as I'm still with you it is evident that I recovered from my crushing disappointment. At least it was not so crushing as to make me retreat into the safety of my world and slam the door. There were columns I was proud of, and wondered why there was never so much as an echo. There were also the preverbal "pot-boilers," but for these I soothed my conscience by pointing out to it that there is no proof that I'm being read at all. So, the great unsolved mystery:

Where are you? Are you there at all? Week by week I leave a message for you. Do you pick it up and read it after I have trudged onward? Or is it blown away to be lost forever amidst the countless thousands of words that cover our paths like leaves, and rise up around us and sing in our ears. Or, if you do read it, do you like it? Or do you read it for the annoyance value?

This is the point, where the columnist figuratively gets down on his knees and promises his readers to change whatever they do not like. With something of the pathetic eagerness of a performing dog, he swears that he shall be all things to all people, if they will only give him the boon of knowing he is being read.

Me? I'd love to hear from you, but I can't promise to change. I hope to attain a greater fluidity in style, but underneath the increased facility with words it's still going to be me, extolling the joys of living in a world where Verdi and Beethoven can be met, coming around most any corner, and where the deaths of Giselle and Mimi are mourned periodically. It's still going to be me, hailing favorite films with wild enthusiasm, and meeting the typical asinine Hollywood product with the vociferous contempt it deserves. I shall mellow, but it will still be me.

So there you have it. I, who have left so many notes for you, would like you to leave one for me.

Gentlemen:

On behalf of the Sarto Athletic Club and myself, I wish to thank all persons and groups responsible for the prompt action which was taken to remedy the poor condition of the baseball diamond at Marchbanks Park. In so far as my own club is concerned, we are happy to be able to return to what we consider our home field, and I am sure that the rest of the local baseball teams feel the same way. There should be no further difficulties in inducing visiting teams to play at Marchbanks. I am sure that there will be many good games played there this season and in the seasons to come.

RIDGELY CUMMINGS REPORTS:

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR

When on a rainy night in Hollywood this past spring the Academy Awards were handed out, a two-reeler made in Canada won top honors as the best short subject. It was called "Neighbors" and various friends who had seen it prior to the voting raved about it. I didn't rate a vote but got to see some of the nominated films anyway they were run off at the Academy Awards Theatre. However this was among the ones I missed.

Consequently, my curiosity aroused, I made a point of seeing "Neighbors" when it reached a second-run San Francisco theatre the other night. Also I took with me an Intelligent Young Lady whose critical judgment I respect. Perhaps unconsciously I was looking for essay material. At any rate, it was the reaction of the IYL that provides the substance of this piece.

"Neighbors" opened with weird and rather pleasing sound effects. While the credits were listed, music and related noises in a minor key came out of the screen with a tinkling, tumbling sound to set a mood of hilarity.

Technically the film was full of innovations, half animated cartoon and half human figures performing with benefit of trick photography.

On a green lawn two identical houses, appeared, two similarly dressed young men dragged deck chairs out on the grass, lit up pipes, companionably passing each other the matches, and began reading what seemed to be identical newspapers.

The camera drew back and a slight difference in the newspapers became noticeable. One had a headline reading: PEACE SEEN IF NO WAR and the man reading it smiled happily. The other proclaimed: WAR SEEN IF NO PEACE and the man holding it frowned and shook his head in concern.

Suddenly, to the accompaniment of amusing sound effects, a beautiful flower sprang out of the soil exactly midway between the two houses.

The men looked at it, smiled at each other, put down their papers and knelt to admire the flower and smell its fragrance. The flower danced in glee. The men whiffed its perfume and did a sprightly roundelay themselves. All was sweetness and light.

Then, while one of the men was cavorting in ecstasy, the other lay down on the ground and put his arms around the flower. The first man returned and tried to smell it again. The other man pushed him off. A heated argument ensued.

One man built a fence enclosing the flower on his side. The other knocked it down and built his own fence around the flower. At first tentatively, the men resorted to violence, pushing and pulling at each other. Gradually they became more and more fierce and cruel. Soon they were battering each other with fence palings.

Each time they struck the other, their faces changed. A new line of anger, resentment, suffering, fear and hatred was etched on what had begun as typically friendly, suburban visages.

Soon they were wild, bleeding, toothless savages. They punched and pounded each other with relentless cruelty and in a moment transferred their rage and hatred to the respective families of the opposite number.

Each in turn tore down the

HOW CAN I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I reclaim fruit that is beginning to turn sour?

A. Add a pinch of baking soda and boil the fruit over again for a few minutes.

Q. What is an easy way to get the pin feathers out of a chicken?

A. Tweezers are very good for this. Another good way is the use of paraffin. Pour melted paraffin over the bird, let it harden, then peel off. The pin feathers should come with it.

Q. How can I remove mildew from leather shoes?

A. Scrub them with a hand brush dipped in lukewarm water and mild soapsuds—preferably castile soap. Wipe them with a damp cloth and give the shoes a day or two in the sun before polishing them.

Q. How can I get rid of the fish odor in a frying pan?

A. Sprinkle salt in the pan, add hot water, and let it stand for awhile before washing it.

Q. How can I stimulate the growth of my house plants?

A. Try rubbing a little castor oil or mineral oil lightly over the leaves of the plants. This will keep them looking green and will stimulate their growth by cleaning the pores through which the plant breathes.

Q. What makes my wood-burning fireplace smoke?

A. It may be improper building of the fire. For one thing, three logs are best for starting a fire—paper and kindling on the bottom, then two logs across this and one long on top of them. Bunch up some newspaper, put it on the very top log, light it to get the draft going. When that paper is almost consumed, light the paper underneath.

Q. How can I distribute starch evenly through very flimsy curtains?

A. Have your starch solution boiling hot; dip the curtains in, and then put them through the wringer.

house of the other, smashed the woman and child revealed huddling in the wreckage and then returned again to their ferocious combat.

The flower, innocent cause of the holocaust, was trampled to shreds.

Finally, in ultimate bursts of savagery, the men killed each other. Everything was destroyed, house, family and themselves.

The music changed and with it the mood. Where the men had lain in their death agonies, two peaceful graves appeared.

The fence palings arose and enclosed the graves in a single plot. Then the palings parted momentarily and two little flowers, duplicates of the one over which the neighbors had fought, marched up and took their places on the mounds of earth. End of picture.

"What a terrific message!" I said to the Intelligent Young Lady as we left the theatre.

"You mean to say you liked that?" she asked in horrified surprise.

"Why certainly. It was a great object lesson. It taught graphically the value of brotherly love. I thought it was eloquent."

"Eloquent!" exclaimed the IYL in obvious disgust. "A few more eloquent lessons like that and we'll have a world of savages."

"I don't get your point."

"You can't teach love by glorifying brutality," said the IYL. "The whole thing was dripping with sadism. Why do you think the audience ate it up? Because they liked the idea of loving their neighbor? No, because they were vicariously enjoying the thrill of beating the brains out of a competitor."

"But they applauded at the end, when the point of fellowship was punched home."

"Punched is a good word for it," said the IYL. "Their applause was a sop to their consciences. We want to give lip service to fine ideals and at the same time wallow to the full in our lusts and brutal instincts."

The IYL and I continued the discussion at length and I wish I had taken notes on all she said. For at the finish she nearly had me convinced that she was correct. She claimed the reason "Neighbors" collected so many Academy votes was because it played both sides of the street.

"It panders to the sordid instincts while at the same time preaching a message that coincides with their strictly verbal shibboleths," she declared.

I ended up confused. That's the trouble with keeping intelligent company. But on mature consideration I've decided that "Neighbors" is definitely a superior piece of cinematography, regardless of what the IYL thinks.

Anything that provokes such a difference of opinion is automatically better than most of the pap Hollywood feeds us. If any of my readers happen to see this film and care to express an opinion, I'd be interested. Send it as a letter to the editor and maybe he'll print it. A public discussion of neighborliness can't do any harm. Not these days.

NOSTALGIA DEPARTMENT

In 1939 an old friend of ours... A. A. McCOLLISTER... was managing a softball team at the Golden Gate International Exposition and once when we were tramping through Treasure Island he introduced us to his most hustling ball player, JOE VERDUCCI... wasn't a college football coach then, nor a member of the city council of Daly City. A little later, Joe's brother... FRANK... was a familiar figure on the street cars that carried students from Powell and Sutter to Galileo high school when San Francisco Junior College was scattered all over S. F. And we watched... JOHNNY... another brother tote a pigskin for San Fran State too.

Speaking of football reminds us of some old Jeff Hi stars we used to know. Halfback... BOB CHRISTEN... he's flying for Pam-Am the last we heard. Center... DICK WILSON... they tell us he's selling sporting goods and guard... GLEN SMITH... who has been seen around San Mateo's Memorial park working. It's been a long time.

Living out in Colma is... AME FANFELLE... and down in Westlake... LES SWANSON... with whom we've rifled many a deck of cards. How's the luck running, boys?

CURIOSITY DEPARTMENT

Who are the ladies who play bingo once a month and eat 60 of the turnovers... JIMMY JOHNS... and CHRIS PAPPAS... of the Noriega Coffee Shop make so well? The ladies play bingo on Thursdays.

We also wonder who is going to buy the Chateau Restaurant. DOLLY LEWKOWITZ... says that she's working too hard, and besides she wants to spend more time taking care of her... SEVEN... children.

A TRICK OF THE TRADE

Did you ever wonder where the names on the NEW RESIDENTS... list come from? If so, here's the answer. Every week, usually on Monday, this reporter goes to the city hall and copies the names out of a book handed him by... WILMA RILEY... or... BARBARA GALINO... or... ALLEN HERTEL. The book contains the names of people who have just paid deposits on meters. Get it?

WARNING DEPARTMENT

If you go dancing at Wolohan's on Market street, be careful what you say around the boss... JOHN WOLLOHAN... it's liable to end up in Herb Caen's column. At least that's what happened to... MRS. HELEN FARRIS... wife of medal-collecting... JIMMY FARRIS. The way we found out about this is by being curious how the sergeant's shirts and air-mailing them to Korea got into the SF paper.

MAYBE DEPARTMENT

Nobody will vouch for this story, but it could have happened. Two efficiency experts were sent out from the east to lower labor costs on a construction job. They set up adjoining offices. One man began laying off workers and the other called them into his office as they were leaving and offered them their jobs back at 37 cents an hour less. The workers called up their union boss. When he came to investigate the efficiency experts explained that the whole thing was a jurisdictional dispute. I don't get it either.

HOMECOMING DEPARTMENT

Back decorating the Water Department office after a seven months absence is... MRS. BEATRICE THIMIS... who presented her husband... TOM... with daughter... LYNDA JOY... while she was away from work. The Thimis' live at 118 Peoria street and Lynda Joy is an only child.

Also back on the job is... FRANK MONTE... intrepid ad man of THE RECORD staff. Frank has been to Alaska fishing and forming some interesting opinions of the men—especially from Monterey—who fill the Friday can of fish for millions of Americans. After his return from a "not so hot" fishing season, Frank took time out to take his wife... FLORENCE... to Rio Nido to give her a brief lay-off from the cooking chores. This trip was in jeopardy for a while until the "measles" baby... MICHELE... apparently had turned out to be hives.

A packed office was waiting for... DAN ANDERSEN... who returned to his bailwick last Monday after a week of carefree lounging at Yosemite. Dan may be off again early next month if his plans to attend the convention of city managers in Los Angeles materialize.

New Book Tells Of The Alaskan Arctic

What kind of plants grow in the Arctic circle? What kind of fishes inhabit its many lakes? What kinds of animals endure these months of snow and ice? Much revolutionary new data about this region is contained in "Current Biological Research in the Alaskan Arctic," just published by Stanford University Press.

Arctic Laboratory

All the facts in this new book, a symposium of research results, were gathered at the Arctic Research Laboratory, Point Barrow, Alaska, which is supported by the Office of Naval Research. Editor of the book is Dr. Ira L. Wiggins, Scientific Director of the Laboratory, Director of the Stanford Natural History Museum, and professor of biology at Stanford University.

Contributors to the symposium are George W. Comita, University of Washington, John L. Mohr, University of Southern California, Donald E. Wohlschlag, Stanford University, W. T. Edmondson, University of Washington, W. C. Steere, Stanford University, and William V. Mayer, University of Southern California.

Ancient Mosses

All the papers contain new and original information, but most revolutionary are discoveries made by Dr. William Campbell Steere, professor of biology and curator of Cryptogams in the Stanford Dudley Herbarium.

It has been previously assumed that arctic mosses and lower plant life in general were not indigenous to that area and were only reduced or adaptive forms of counterparts in more temperate climates. Dr. Steere, however, by making many careful field studies, discovered a group of species native to the arctic regions, making up about 10 per cent of all the species of mosses growing there. These species grow all around the north polar basin, Steere says, and he feels that it may very well have been a center for the dissemination of these mosses.

Typical Types

Mosses closest relatives of these mosses occur in very distant parts of the world, usually in the southern hemisphere. Steere says—Bolivia, Chile, Java, the Fiji Islands. Some of these species occurring in the open tundra of the Arctic belong to genera of marked tropical distribution that are normally restricted in their habitat to trunks of trees—indicating perhaps that they persisted after trees disappeared and adapted themselves to tundra tussocks.

Alaskan Lake Waters

Eight lakes in northern Alaska were studied by G. W. Comita and W. T. Edmondson, both of the University of Washington staff. Comparisons were made with freshwater lakes in lower latitudes, particularly those in Wisconsin, Connecticut, and Minnesota, with regard to the amount of available solar energy used in photosynthesis. The arctic lakes appeared to be more efficient in using available solar energy during the short summer season (July 18 to August 26) than the American lakes, although differences in plant life may account for this variation. Analyses were made of the population changes in zooplankton, with especial emphasis on a type of crustacean which lays its eggs in the layer of free water far below the thick ice formations which cover the lakes during the long winters.

Ground Squirrel

The Barrow ground squirrel, an animal which buries itself in the ground during the arctic winter, is studied by William V. Mayer of the University of Southern California. Three ground squirrel colonies were observed with their distribution and habitat, activity, and feeding habits.

These squirrels are able to live in the Arctic only by using small isolated islands of sandy or gravelly areas on the tundra to build burrows and nests which give a maximum amount of insulation from the frozen earth. They hibernate during October, appear in the early spring, mate and produce young during the four summer months, and also store enough food in the form of fat on and in their bodies to last the winter. Their diet is almost "omnivorous," the author says, permitting them to take full advantage of plants and available animal food—even the carcasses of other squirrels which the investigators had prepared as study skins and left out to dry.

Fish

Donald E. Wohlschlag, assistant professor of biological sciences at Stanford, made a study to determine the magnitude and some of the characteristics of the fish populations in an Alaskan arctic lake and to relate these determinations to the possible future development of fresh-water fishery resources in the area.

He chose Ikroavik Lake to study, one of thousands in the Point Barrow Region (fresh-water ponds, lakes, and streams cover 50 per cent of the land surface of the northern arctic slope of Alaska). He had only the ice-free summer months in which to work, with speculations to develop as to the activities and size of the fish population in the 1½ feet of water that remains under the 6-foot ice cover during the rest of the year.

Stickleback

Nine-spined stickleback, whitefish, and two salmon constituted the lakes' fish population, he found. They spawn during late summer, and hatch their young under the ice during the winter. The Eskimo fishermen tend to overfish certain areas, suggesting the need for stringent regulations, or improved transportation facilities for moving fisheries after the larger fish from small populations are removed. Different species could be exploited by different methods of capture, he thinks, but more study should be devoted to the subject before any permanent regulations are imposed.

Other Papers

Other papers include a description of the organization and facilities of the Arctic Research Laboratory by Dr. Wiggins and observations on the shrimp and other crustaceans that inhabit the Arctic by Dr. Mohr. A number of maps and charts accompany the studies.

WHEN SEATS DEFORM

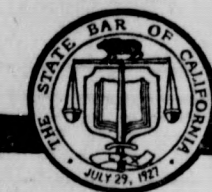

Deformation of seat cushions, evident in a sagging of the coil springs and a wrinkling of the upholstery, may be owing to simple age or excessive wear, according to the National Automobile Club. It frequently happens, however, that the trouble arises from the fact that the seat is not properly anchored. Incidentally, this not only is hard on the cushion but hard on the driver as well for the seat springs, properly used, are pretty fine shock absorbers.

Approach all intersections with caution, advises the National Automobile Club.

Hale (right), 618 Thornton avenue, San Francisco, test a radio receiver prior to installing it in an F4U-4 Corsair aircraft. They are members of Marine Reserve Fighter Squadron 141 now on maneuvers at Marine Corps Air station, El Toro. They will be airlifted back to the Oakland Naval Air station on August 8 and return to their civilian jobs.

LAW IN ACTION

A DRIVER IN AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Lawyers know that accidents may leave victims and bystanders upset and confused. So wise people form a plan of conduct in advance. Then, in an emergency, they do the right thing almost without thinking. They have thought through the main steps already.

Here are some things for a driver to do or not to do:

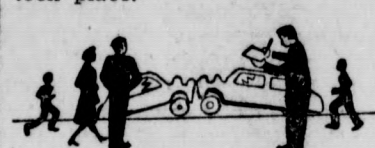

- Stop!
- Assist the injured.
- Get license numbers.
- Identify the other driver.
- Identify yourself to him.
- Contact witnesses.
- Make written notes.
- Report the accident to the police or sheriff.
- Notify your insurance carrier.
- See a doctor if necessary.

Stop when you can without blocking traffic. Never drive away from an accident without giving the other party your name. To do so is a crime. See if anyone is hurt. If so, and if the injury is serious, call a doctor or an ambulance—whichever is quicker. Make the hurt person comfortable. But do not move him in any way that could add to his injury.

This may bear repetition:

Get the other driver's name, address, license number. Give him yours. Give these facts to any of the injured. Show your driver's license to the injured and the other driver upon request.

If the accident takes place at night, see that flares or other signals are placed to warn oncoming traffic. Get as many witnesses' names and addresses as you can and their story of what took place.

WRITE IT DOWN on the spot. Take written notes and be specific. Step off distances. Note your speed if you know it. Note if the road was wet, and if the traffic light was working. Diagram the positions of the cars.

If the accident is serious, stay until the police come and give them your help. If anyone is hurt, you must report the accident.

NOTE: The State Bar of California offers this column for your information so that you may know more about how to act under our laws.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS

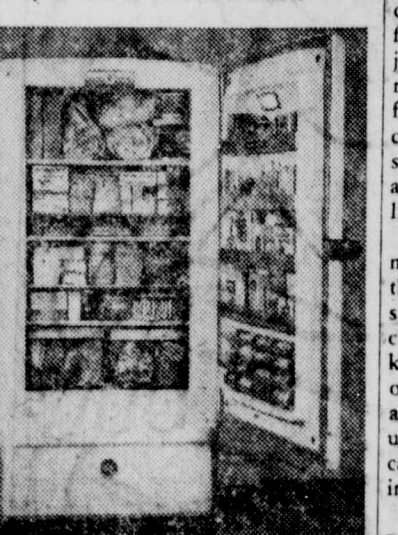

CHOOSE UPRIGHT OR CHEST FREEZER TO FIT FLOOR SPACE, FAMILY NEEDS

by the General Electric Consumers Institute

If you're in the market for a food freezer, the biggest question which comes to mind, according to the General Electric Consumers Institute, is whether to buy a chest or upright model.

An upright freezer looks much like a refrigerator. It is taller than it is wide, the door opens upwards, and the storage shelves are quite similar to those of a refrigerator. A chest-type freezer, on the other hand, is about the same height as a kitchen counter top. The lid opens upwards from the top, and the large storage compartment is usually sectioned off by wire dividers or storage baskets. Operating costs for the two types are about equal.

Perhaps of greatest importance to a prospective buyer is the amount of floor space the freezer requires. An upright requires little more floor space than a large refrigerator and is often considered desirable for kitchen installations where floor space is a primary consideration. The chest type, on the other hand, requires much more floor space, but the convenient counter height, flat top can be used when necessary as an extra work counter.

Truly a super-market at home, this upright freezer provides ample storage space for large, bulky items and for all kinds of frozen foods. Door shelves keep food at your fingertips, and special liquid dispenser racks allow quick visual inventory of what's on hand.

In addition to refrigeration coils in the top and bottom of the cabinet, an upright freezer has several refrigerated shelves to assure maintenance of zero temperature from top to bottom. Here food comes into close contact with the freezing coils and is quickly brought down to the proper storage temperature. Frozen foods are stored on these shelves or any other convenient location.

Between the refrigerated shelves of upright freezers, adjustable, sliding shelves are sometimes found. These convenient shelves make it possible to see and reach packages of food stored in the back of the freezer. The same shelves are usually adjustable to several positions, making it possible to store various size containers without wasting valuable storage space. For example, placed close to a refrigerated shelf, an adjustable shelf would make it possible to store as many as 6 pies without stacking them on top of one another.

Door Shelves Convenient

Door shelves are another convenience feature often found on upright freezers. The shelves give you ample space for small packages which you can see at a glance. Right at your fingertips will be such foods as frozen juices, commercially prepared foods, rolls, and other foods you will use frequently. On them can be stored a complete breakfast—frozen juices, sausage, frozen waffles or English muffins, and even frozen coffee extract, if you like.

Chest-type freezers provide a little more flexibility of arrangement of food than the upright type. Bulky packages stack conveniently at the bottom of the chest-type freezer, and convenient baskets come with the freezer to help in organizing food storage. Small packages and foods used frequently are usually stored in the baskets, which can be lifted easily for access to foods in the lower section.

Features, available on both types, which you should look for when making your selection are: a temperature control which can be adjusted to provide a temperature range of from zero to ten below; a thermometer to indicate safe storage temperature; an interior light or alarm to warn you if the freezer is not operating correctly; good insulation, and a secure latch which assures a tight seal between door and cabinet.

Miss Lorraine DeFanti Weds Carl Rollandi In Double Ring Ceremony

Wedding vows were exchanged Sunday afternoon at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church between Miss Lorraine DeFanti, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence DeFanti of Daly City, and Carl Rollandi of San Francisco, with the Reverend Norman Allen officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride pledged her troth in a bouffant gown of chintilly lace over sunburst while nylon tulle fashioned for her by the groom's mother. Her finger-tip length French illusion veil was held in place by a lace cap trimmed with pearls and lillies-of-the-valley. She carried a prayer-book marker of bouvardia.

Mrs. Elia Ciardella, sister of the bride, was matron-of-honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Gean Olsen and Mrs. Lena Van Fleet, a cousin of the bride. The attendants were frocked in ballerina-length dresses of pleated white nylon skirts with lace bodices over ice-blue taffeta. They carried pink of bouvardia and white orchids.

Nancy Ciardella served as flower girl for her aunt. She was attired in a dress similar to that of the other attendants and carried a nosegay of baby roses and forget-me-nots.

Enrico Rossi served as best man by proxy for Albert Rollandi, the brother of the groom who is serving with the United States Marine Corps somewhere in Japan.

Ushers were Paciano Sanchez, a college fraternity brother of the groom's, and Elio Ciardella.

The groom's six-year-old brother served as junior attendant.

Setting for the post-nuptial gathering was the Lakeside Plaza auditorium where several hundred guests joined in the wedding celebration.

The bride's mother chose a purple faille suit for the wedding and donned a matching hat with black accessories. She wore an orchid corsage.

Mother of the groom selected a dress of black chintilly lace over pink taffeta. To complement this she wore matching hat and gloves and carried an orchid.

For her going-away outfit, the new Mrs. Rollandi chose a redwood shad gabardine suit with a pert hat of the same material and brown cobra shoes which matched her purse.

A graduate of St. Paul's high school, the new Mrs. Rollandi also attended the University of California, where she belonged to the honor society.

After graduation from San Francisco's St. Ignatius high school, the benedict attended the Oregon State College of Pharmacy where he was affiliated with the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Upon their return from a southern California honeymoon, the newlyweds will take up residence at a new home built for them on Washington street by the groom's father.

Three Daly City ladies traveled to San Juan Bautista last weekend to attend the 12th district convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Representing Old Glory Post No. 2044 were Mrs. Elizabeth Sorensen, president of the local chapter, Mrs. Eleanor Cochran and Mrs. Clara Poket. The ladies report that the weather was beautiful and the barbecue dinner served by the Leslie L. Garratt post was wonderful.

According to the delegates, the next convention will be held in Morgan Hill sometime in November.

FREE ENTERTAINMENT FOR ALL AT COUNTY FAIR AND FIESTA

Free entertainment is again offered at the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta, August 14 through 22, in the new Fiesta Bowl and on the Outdoor Garden Stage. The price of admission to the fairgrounds (85c for adults, 25c for children under 12) entitled visitors not only to view all exhibits but also to attend all stage shows featuring such outstanding entertainers as Bud Moore's orchestra, Phil Arden, Johnny O'Brien, Vernon and Draper, Toy and Wing, Ross and Stone. Among the dance revues will be the Helen O'Neil dancers and the Les Williams dancers.

The big show, The Fiesta Jamboree, in the Fiesta Bowl will be presented twice daily and the entire program will be changed for the last four days of the Fiesta. Jack Reese, Jr., special events director, will be master of ceremonies.

Almost continuous entertainment will be offered on the Outdoor Garden stage. Shafon's puppets will return from Hollywood to give performances the first five days, William M. Wilson, Fiesta manager, announced today. This famous attraction found favor with adults and children alike when it appeared last year, and has been brought back by popular demand. Many new puppets will be added to the "Revue in Miniature" this year.

Two distinct shows will be presented by two different troupes of shafon's puppets. The first will be presented on August 15, 16 and 17 by Jack and Jackie Shafon. They will be followed on August 18 and 19 by Bill and Billie Cassidy, presenting a completely different cast of Shafon's puppets.

Both shows will feature the unique novelty in which the puppeteers make "human puppets" of themselves, using their own heads attached to puppet bodies.

When they are not performing at the numerous fairs throughout the state, Shafon's Puppets and the puppeteers are engaged in Hollywood with television and motion picture activities. They are a popular feature of the NBC-TV "All Star Revue" and have just completed a special effects for "Twelve Mile Reef" at 20th Century-Fox Studios.

Bozo, the clown, Pookie-Pookie, the magician, and Cantini, the magician, are a few of the other celebrities who will appear.

Daily programs of all special events and entertainment features will be announced in your newspaper.

GAS-U-MAT STEALS THE SHOW IN LOCAL ADULT SOFTBALL LEAGUE PLAY

Top Lincoln Nine 5 to 4 In Playoffs

The hustling Gas-U-Mat club from Colma emerged as Daly City Adult Softball league champs this week as they copped the play-off from the powerful Lincoln Lions, winning 5 to 4.

The Colma club jumped to an early lead when Jack Morgan, who had singled, was driven across by Eddy Arnold's liner to left.

The Gas-U-Mat nine added a pair in the second when Quint's error allowed Chelone, who had singled, and Hughes, who had walked, to score.

Lincoln fought back in the third with a single run, then exploded for two in the fourth. Larry Blanchard's long triple to center field, scoring Gene Lorenzo, was the best whack of the inning.

With the Gas outfit leading 4 to 3 going into the fifth the Lions' Izzy Galante doubled to right and scampered home with the tying run when Gene Lorenzo belted his third consecutive hit of the night.

The Colma team scored what proved to be the winning run in their half of the fifth when Palmeri, who had singled, went to third on Don Murchinson's wild throw and then scored easily on Leo Massoni's shary drive to left.

A large portion of the credit for the Gas-U-Mat victory went to Pitcher Eddy Arnold, for his brilliant performance on the mound and manager Leo Massoni for his all-around play in the field.

The winners received from Recreation Director James Mason a cash award which will go toward individual trophies.

Capture 2nd Half Crown; No Losses

The hard - hitting Gas-U-Mat nine of Colma slugged out a pair of victories over two of the Adult Softball league's top contenders to capture the league's second half championship with a perfect 4-0 record.

First to fall victim before the Gas - U - Mat club were the strong Lincoln Lions, who annexed the league's first-half championship. Gas-U-Mat opened the ball game with a five-run outburst in the first inning, behind the stick work of Eddy Arnold, Leo Massoni and Stan Morgan.

Big Single
Morgan's long single with the sacks loaded was the big blow of the frame. The Lincoln club made their strongest bid for victory in the fourth when Vic Drago's wildness and successive singles by Ron Quint and Joe Galante accounted for three runs.

Gasser manager Massoni immediately inserted pitching ace Eddy Arnold, who allowed one run on three hits for the remainder of the fray.

The final tally saw Gas-U-Mat winning, 9 to 6.

The victory avenged an earlier 3-2 defeat at the hands of the Lincolns.

Only Barrier
With the Gas house gang in undisputed first place after their upset win over the Lions, only the respected Daly City Fire Department combo could stymie their chances for the second half title.

The Colma team served early notice, however, that they weren't to be had, as they drove in five runs on four hits.

Pitcher Arnold, who gave a sparkling performance on the mound, pushed across three runs with a long double to the left patch during the wild melee in the first canto. Both clubs scored a single run in the second frame.

The Gas-U-Mat's tally came on successive singles by Morgan and scored when Larry Kennedy Jr. singled home Murphy who had doubled.

Errors Hurt
The gassers added another run in the fourth when a pair of errors by the Fire Department's Gil Fontana allowed Chelone to score from third.

Behind 7 to 1, going into the sixth, the Fire Department scored a pair of runs on two hits and an error. Larry Kennedy Sr.'s booming triple to right center was the big effort of the inning. The ball missed the home run barrier by a scant yard.

The Daly City nine managed to push across another score in the seventh, but it was a case of too little, too late, as the Gas outfit walked off with a 7-4 victory and the league's crown.

Other Contests
In other adult softball games, Aetna Roofers' Gary Bookout came through with the hottest pitching performances of the season, as he shut out the Colma Fire Department, while his mates slammed across 11 runs on an equal number of bingles.

Bookout also led the hitting attack with a pair of singles and a long triple to left center, personally driving in four counters.

In the final game of the league's last half the once-beaten Lincoln Lions slugged their way to a 9-5 triumph over the hard-luck Daly City fire eaters.

The Fire Department, led by Chuck Maynard and Leo Gianicchio slammed out nine hits, while pitcher Larry Kennedy Sr. stopped the Lincoln club with six hits.

Poor infield support spelled doom for the Daly City aggregation as three errors and Bob Murchinson's double accounted for four big runs in the second.

Three more bobbles and Don Wilson's line drive single cost the smokemen two additional runs in the fourth, giving the Lincoln club a commanding lead.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Tom Keating
(Editor, Sports Afield Magazine)

Suppose you are going into the wilderness and you are going to have to live off of the country. You are to be allowed such essentials as line, hooks and sinkers. But you will be permitted only a single item that can be considered an artificial lure. What would you choose?

Byron Dalymple who has sampled every type of angling and frequently tells about it to SPORTS AFIELD magazine, nominates the old fashioned spinner.

The spinner is one of the simplest gadgets fashioned by man in his centuries-long search for a means to catch fish. It is one of the most effective, and perhaps the most interesting, artificial lure.

There have long been, and are today, all manners of lures based on or assisted by the revolving principle of movement and metallic flash. But the curious fact remains that the simple original, whether used in company with a bare hook, feathered fly, hair or pork rind, or even a small plug probably accounts annually for more fish under tougher fishing conditions than any other piece of fishing equipment ever manufactured.

But all spinners are not good spinners, and the difference between good and bad is the difference between fish and no fish. A cheaply made spinner doesn't turn well. Sometimes it doesn't turn at all. A spinner blade must be well fashioned and of good material, and the shank and the fastenings must be likewise if the lure is to do its job properly. Erratic, inefficient, or off-balance blades are ineffective because they throw less light reflections. Most important of all, probably, is the finish. Since the purpose of the spinner is to catch light and throw it off the revolving blade in a "shower" of sparks a poor finish on a cheap blade has two harmful attributes: the light-tossing powers are toned down; and the fish have plenty of time to look over a slow-turning, dull blade—it certainly won't attract and may repel them. On the other hand a swiftly-spinning, highly-polished blade presents a mesmerizing effect of formless and curious glitter—it does this even to the eye of the angler.

So regardless of your personal views on how fishing should be done and your prejudice against methods other than your favorite, the fact remains that the old-fashioned revolving spinner has a fatal fascination for practically every species of game fish.

WHEN OILING THE CAR

If the garage doors are the kind that operate on rollers, it will pay to remember that the rollers function more effectively when given an occasional charge of lubricant, points out the National Automobile Club. It needs to be done, but rarely.

Ralph's Cleaners Beat Bohannon Yanks; To Enter PBL Finals Tilt

MURPHY AND BUTCHER SPARKLE AT BAT AS LOCALS GET REVENGE

Ralphs Cleaners had to go extra innings last Sunday to win a 6-5 decision from the previously unbeaten Bohannon Yanks at San Mateo's Fitzgerald field and enter the finals of the championship playoff for the title of the senior division of the northern Peninsula Baseball league.

Ralphs broke out in front when left fielder John Murphy doubled with center fielder Larry Blanchard, catcher Bob Butcher and Arnold Brooks, who performed in right field and did a superb job of relief pitching, on base to score three runs.

Don Delbon and Lefty Dan Bertilli dissipated the lead and Arnold Brooks was called in from right field to put out a Yankee fire that netted five runs. Brooks gave up one hit for his three inning stint. Ralphs got an unearned run in the fifth and were trailing going into the seventh when Butcher slammed out a homer to tie the score and put the game in extra innings. The blow was off pint-sized Shig Moraki who had handed the local team its only defeat in league play earlier this season.

In the bottom of the seventh, center fielder Blanchard made a sensational catch of a fly ball off of the bat of Routeman the right fielder for the San Mateo team. This took the spark out of the Yanks and the locals coasted to victory on the unearned run in the first extra inning of the game.

Left fielder Murphy slammed out two doubles to pace the local.

Manager Lou Martin reported that Butcher's work behind the plate was outstanding.

Just before game time the San Mateo county recreation director will flip a coin to decide which team will be the home team. Manager Martin had previously lost the toss to decide whether or not Marchbanks field would be used.

Winner of the northern division championship will meet the winner of the southern division championship for the county title.

HUNTING AND FISHING LEGISLATION GOES IN EFFECT NEXT MONTH

California sportsmen will be faced with some new hunting and fishing legislation when the sun rises on September 9—the 91st day after adjournment of the 1953 Legislative session.

While the Legislature farms out its right to set most angling and hunting seasons and bag limits to the Fish and Game commission, many outdoor matters find their way into legislative hoppers.

Among the new measures which carry an urgency clause and are already in effect are laws prohibiting the take of forked-horn deer in northeastern Calif. District 134, and moving the northern portion of Colusa county from the late deer hunting season to the August 8 to September 13 season.

Also labeled urgent are new laws which prohibit wild burro hunting for a period of two years, setting aside the waters of Francis, Williams and Rees creeks in Humboldt county for exclusive use of anglers under the age of 15, and closing Little River beach in Humboldt county to the taking of razor clams.

Included in the new legislation which becomes effective September 9 are bills which:

Require the Department of Fish and Game to furnish information on the safe handling of firearms to licensed hunters prior to the 1954 hunting season;

Adds "amphibia" to the legal definition of fish, thus requiring

WESTLAKE ROCKETS BEAT LEAGUE LEADERS... PENNANT CHASE CLOSES

The Westlake Rockets climaxed a thrilling season last Saturday with a well-deserved 7 to 6 win over the league leading Millbrae Optimists. Westlake came from behind in the 6th and 7th innings to tie the score, and went ahead in the overtime 8th to win the most exciting game of the season.

Sparked by the hitting of Anthony Stagnaro and Leroy Franzio and the hitting and pitching of steady Eddi Leveroni, the West-lakers rose to new heights in hustle and good sound baseball.

With the score tied in the extra inning 8th and a time limit rapidly closing in on them, Stagnaro walked and promptly stole second. The Millbrae infield let Stagnaro take a big lead and he stole third in a very close play. Then Leroy Franzio was walked. When given the sign, he stole second. The Millbrae catcher first motioned a throw to second and Stagnaro faked coming home. In his anxiety to pick off the lead runner, the Millbrae catcher threw the ball over the third baseman's head and Stagnaro came home head first with the game winning tally.

The win gave the young West-lakers fifth place in the league standings and a desire to win more games next year. The team will continue winter baseball under the direction of the Recreation department.

Paced by Darrell Hutchinson's 26 points, the Daly City Lakers defeated Hillside and cinched at least a tie for the South San Francisco Recreation league championship. Ron Joy contributed 20 points and Rich Watson 18 of the Lakers total of 82. Hillside scored 45.

For most of the first half, the Lakers changed from their fast-breaking style to a slow-passing game. At halftime, the score was 27-16 in favor of the Lakers. Re-turning to the fast-break in the second half, the locals scored 55 points.

With just two games left to play, the locals are leading the league with a 5-0 record.

WESTLAKE

Highlighting this weeks recreation activities was an archery tournament held Tuesday, August 4. Gary Gross, 11, was the highest scorer with 60 points; Roy Roberts, 11, was next with 49; Richard Mollison, 11, took third place with 46; Kenneth Moore, 13, shot 40; Kit Leslie, 12, hit 31; and Mike Silverstein, 11, shot a 26.

During the past two weeks there has been noted enthusiasm shown toward the archery classes which are held every Tuesday under the supervision of Miss Marjorie Erickson. When the class was first started only one or two children knew the basic fundamentals, now, a month later over 30 children are shooting with increasing skill and accuracy.

Westlake Arts and Crafts enthusiasts are working conscientiously to complete their projects in time for the Art Exhibit, August 19, at the Community Center. Weaving and braiding belts, chains and bracelets are the more popular crafts among the intermediates. Painting and coloring interest the younger set. Look for these in the Art Exhibit.

EDGEWOOD PLAYGROUND

Summer vacation is nearly over; still the children make each day last as long as possible. Albert Barrena and Michael Steele have signed up to participate in the Seals Stadium outing. The entire playground is anxiously awaiting the day of the Scavenger Hunt. This event is scheduled for next week and promises to be fun for all.

Edgewood extends a warm welcome to the Bridges family who have been visiting relatives in Oklahoma. We all were glad to see Linda and Donnie after their absence.

Thursday, Victor Shannon rode up to the playground on a little pony, to display his skill of riding bareback to the children. Now we know why we haven't seen Vic around lately. He has been spending all his free time at the stable where he has developed this skill.

LINCOLN PLAYGROUND

Lincoln Playground welcomes Don Weckerle, a visitor from Sunnyside. Don originally lived in Daly City. He is up here on a visit with his aunt.

Lincoln Playground wishes to announce that a Tetherball tournament will begin the week of August 17th. Anyone interested should come to the park that week and sign up.

This week the children's interest still remained with the sandbox. Catherine Allen and Frank Taylor (Continued on Page 7)

All Art Centers were busy planning for the Annual Arts and Crafts exhibition to be held this year at Community Center, Wednesday evening, August 19th, at 7 o'clock. All centers will be represented. Previews at each center will be held Monday and Tuesday preceding—Vista Grande at 1030 a.m. Monday; Jefferson at 2:30 Monday; Crocker at 2:30 Tuesday. These gatherings will serve as an in-gathering of articles and acquaint the nearby communities with the activities of the centers.

Outstanding participants have volunteered to demonstrate how craft articles are made.

Barbara Balbi from Jefferson, finger painting and Charleen Maschoit from Crocker will create boxes and gifts wrapped from finger painting. Leather craft will be demonstrated by the Village brothers, Rodney and Donald of Vista Grande who have made articles as binocular cases and comb cases from plastic automobile upholstery. 6860 Mission street. Pyrocord weaving and braiding will be demonstrated by Donna Amada, Eddi Baker and Richie Echols of Crocker. Painting of china and glass will be demonstrated by Cecilia Drury, Lloyd Echols and Sharon Friend of Crocker. Maxine Tebeau from Jefferson will do paper mache and woodburning, by Victoria Phillips.

Programs aim has been to foster creative art so that each child could learn to enjoy hobbies that could be made at home and serve as gifts.

All Daily City parents should make a point to visit the center that night and observe first hand that "Art Is Fun To Learn."

New projects introduced, this week have been metal embossing and marbled paper. Next week the paper will be used to cover match books, notebooks and gift boxes.

MARCHBANKS
Midst the barking of the dogs, mewing of the cats and quacking of the ducks Marchbanks held its annual pet show. The gloomy weather discouraged many of the usual pet exhibitions. The owners proudly placed their cats, dogs, ducks, fish, snakes, snails, bees and rodents (rats to you) for the judges.

In the Canine Corner, Carol Romero's "Flash," Rober Opate's "Damb" and Christine Ember's "Fritz" took three of the top places.

Dave Gardner's "Cookie" and Jack Lewis' "Queen Mopsy" got blue ribbons in the feline division.

Next in line for awards were the fish. Several of the owners displayed real showmanship by placing their underwater friends in ornate settings. Peanne Angle's catfish "Bubbles" caught the judges' eyes. Diane Davidson won a ribbon for the best fish-mother of the year, "Mrs. Neptune."

Kathy Williams' "Tiny" won an appropriate prize for the smallest fish.

The most unusual pet was a baby duck. Big brown eyes, fluffy yellow down made "Mickey" an unusual choice.

For the second year George Wells' "Squeaky" took the rosette prize. This pet went home in the evening proudly wearing a blue ribbon.

Cal-Vets Should Plan Schooling For Fall

World War II and Korea veterans should fill out eligibility and enrollment papers right now if they plan to take fall semester training with "Cal-Vet" educational assistance, advised Floyd D. Granger, Veterans Service Officer of San Mateo County.

"Much preliminary work," Granger said, "can be handled without haste and worry now. This includes submission of discharge or separation documents, obtaining a certificate of eligibility and inquiring about approved schools and courses."

"On the other hand, putting off rush start in the Fall can mean serious delay in securing the required authorization for state educational assistance. In some cases, veterans may find they are too late to enroll in certain sought-after courses," Granger added.

"Cal-Vet" state aid may be available to California veterans of World War II and the Korean war who have used up their federal GI entitlement and have not reached their educational objectives. The plan provides for the payment of tuition and fee charges and a maintenance allowance of up to $50 a month for qualified veterans. A maximum outlay of $1,000 can be authorized for any one student.

A California veteran is defined as one who is a native of the state, or who entered military service from California, or who, if a minor at such time, had resided here six months immediately prior to entering military duty.

Veterans must have had at least 90 days' active wartime duty and must have been honorably discharged.

Full information on application procedures for training under state veterans' benefits is available to servicemen and veterans at the Veterans Service Office, in the Courthouse, Redwood City.

Engineers Look For Better Doughnut Recipe

University of California at Los Angeles engineers are looking for a better doughnut recipe.

These are not the kind-you dunk in coffee but tiny ceramic doughnuts so-called because of their shape and used in the memory mechanisms of certain electronic computers.

They are made of black magnetic oxide of iron (ferrite) combined with other metallic oxides. Their function in the computers depends upon the magnetic properties of the oxides, formulas for making the devices now in use have not proved entirely satisfactory, so UCLA engineers are now looking for a new recipe.

No bigger than an aspirin, the gadget can be used to replace vacuum tubes in the memory units. (Some computers have 18,000 such tubes.) An electric pulse sent through the wire strung through the hole in the ceramic doughnut will magnetize it clockwise; a reverse pulse will magnetize it counterclockwise.

In the computer code clockwise magnetization may stand for one while that counterclockwise may represent zero. Various combinations of one and zeros then represent any numbers used in the computers. The doughnut can be "interrogated" by an electric current to determine which way they are magnetized.

Dr. William Knapp is in charge of the ceramics phase of the research. Dr. W. D. Hiersberger is directing the electromagnetophysics.

Cheap Entertainment

San Francisco's three major museums will emphasize various phases of art this month.

At the Museum of Art in the Civic Center lectures based on current exhibitions will be held each Sunday at 3 p.m. The Fernand Leger show of paintings will remain on display through August 23.

The motion picture series at the Palace of the Legion of Honor at Land's End features sea stories. These are screened at 2:30 p.m. Saturdays. In addition the usual Sunday afternoon organ recitals are held at 3 p.m. Admission is free.

M. H. deYoung Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park will feature special exhibitions of water colors, painting and sculpture. The handwoven fabrics in interior show continues through August with the third annual exhibition of the Metal Arts Guild scheduled to open the 29th.

The San Francisco pops concert series has enjoyed near capacity attendance at each performance in the 7000-seat Civic Auditorium this summer. Three more concerts will be presented under the baton of Arthur Fiedler, conducting the Symphony Orchestra.

They will be presented Tuesday, August 11; Saturday, August 16; and Tuesday, August 25 and will feature violinist David Abel; Donald Pippin, pianist; Arthur Peters, tenor and Geraldine Farmer, soprano. The final concert will feature pianist Maxim Schapiro and contralto Elizabeth Harris, who will be heard with the San Francisco Municipal Chorus.

The third California conference for general semantics will be held in San Francisco, August 16-22, at the YWCA.

Among nationally known figures who will speak are Dr. Wendell Douglas, University of Iowa; Dr. Douglas N. Kelley, author of "22 Cells in Nuremberg," and Dr. Anatol Rapoport, associate editor of the semantics magazine, ETC, and member of the faculty of the University of Chicago.

County Republicans Plan Reception For Congressman Younger

Announcement was made today by Don Minto, civic leader and chairman in 1952 of the Younger for Congress committee, that Congressman and Mrs. J. Arthur Younger will be arriving back in San Mateo county the early part of next week. This will be the first visit of the Congressmen since he took office the first of January.

Minto further announced that a public reception will be held welcoming Younger on Thursday, August 20, between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. at Bob's on Broadway, 1443 Broadway, Burlingame. Public officials and dignitaries from throughout the county will meet at that time informally and greet the Congressman, our first direct Representative in Washington. The public is invited.

In answer to the many requests from clubs and organizations asking for an appearance of Younger while he is in the county Minto also stated that his calendar is now being prepared at the 9th District Congressional office, 23 Second avenue, San Mateo. Les Keltling, the Congressman's home secretary, is presently planning speaking engagements for the immediate future.

Highway Patrol Says Motorists Ignore Signs And Signals

"Do you believe in signs?" asks the California Highway Patrol of every driver using California's streets and highways.

"We ask that question because each year at least 6,000 drivers are involved in fatal and injury traffic accidents because they disregarded traffic signs and signals," B. R. Caldwell, Highway Patrol Commissioner, said today. "Probably 100 times that many drivers habitually ignore traffic signs and signals. They may escape trouble for a while but the odds are against them. Sooner or later they will ignore a sign and then tragedy strikes."

"Traffic signs are in reality signs of life and are erected with just one purpose in view, to warn motorists of hazards and dangerous situations just ahead," Caldwell continued. "Drivers who believe in these signs will obey them because they realize the possibility of an accident if they don't."

"Obedience to traffic signs means adjusting the speed of your car to the indicated conditions," the Commissioner added. "It also means making a full stop at every stop sign, never crossing a double line except when the dotted line is on your side, being extra alert at railroad crossings and when driving through construction zones, giving proper signals when turning, changing lanes or stopping and heeding the speed limit signs indicating a speed lower than 55 miles per hour. Obeying the signs of life will make your journey safer, quicker and more enjoyable."

Daly City's PG&E office employees finally decided to institute the custom of afternoon coffee—and threw the first two pots out before discovering "that horrible taste" came from the red nail polish they had used to initial their individual cups! THE RECORD staff members, starting the same aromatic proceedings, think the idea is wonderful and much tastier than printer's ink come a cold foggy day. Colonel Sparrow Lauds Ground Crew Marines

"It takes five Marine aviation specialists on the ground to keep one pilot in the air," declares Lieutenant Colonel Leon Sparrow, USMCR, commanding officer of the Bay Area's own Flying Leatherneck squadron VMF-141.

The aircraft mechanics, ordnancemen and the electronics specialists are just as important as the pilot in accomplishing the assigned mission of a Marine fighter squadron.

Colonel Sparrow and over a hundred other Marine reservists from the San Francisco and Oakland area are now on a two-week summer maneuver at Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Calif.

"How valuable is a mechanic?" the Colonel was asked.

"Well, a pilot without a plane is about as useless as a rifleman without a rifle," he replied. "No bombs, rockets or machine gun fire can be delivered unless the plane is able to get to the target. This depends on the aircraft mechanic's skill and ability in his trade."

A pilot places his confidence in the mechanics who maintain the F4U-4 Corsair fighter planes and keep them in safe flying condition. His very life depends on the plane's performance, said Col. Sparrow.

"Marine Reserve Fighter Squadron 141 functions as one 'team' with each man's job just as important as the pilot's job of flying the Corsairs," he stated.

Like the other pilots, ground officers and enlisted men of VMF-141, Colonel Sparrow is a "Week-End Warrior" with his squadron at the Oakland Naval Air Station. He trains one weekend each month and two weeks during the summer maneuvers.

He resides with his wife, Beverlee, at 2209 Dwight Way, Berkeley, and operates a jewelry importing firm in San Francisco.

Members of Marine Reserve Fighter Squadron 141 who live in the Daly City area now on maneuvers include:

Transplants Will Brighten Up Your Garden Quickly

Summer gardens are often in need of a quick splash of color to heal the scars caused by the removal of a worn out spring planting or a spot neglected by your vacation water boy. The best remedy is to set out transplants that will give color from the day of planting.

Such plant material as dwarf marigolds, annual phlox or bedding petunias work wonders to renovate some dreary spot and then an edging of the ever-reliable dwarf border begonia will serve to give a double accent of ready made color in coastal areas. However, in the inland sections of the State, dwarf begonia should be treated as a shade plant.

Dwarf border begonias transplant readily, even in fullest bloom, and give continuous color from planting till cold weather forces them into dormancy. According to the Bedding Plant Advisory Board the fibrous begonia is worthy of generous usage as it is the top perennial in California gardens. As a pot plant the fibrous begonia is adapted to room conditions and given normal care will serve as a house plant for long periods.

Plants of fibrous begonias are commonly available in white, pink and red. They thrive on a high humus content soil, require very little fertilizer, are relatively pest free and are flexible in regards to exposure. For late summer and for fall planting they are one of the best bets for quick color.

Fuchsias In "Full Bloom"

Beautiful hanging basket fuchsias are available in many nurseries right now—in "full bloom." When you select one, you'll find it relatively easy to plant and maintain. However, permit this lovely flower to become accustomed to its new environment, by establishing it in a sun-filtered and moist location. This will provide conditions similar to those it has known in the nursery. The shade of your porch, terrace or heavy boughed tree... where you can enjoy its beauty while it continues to bloom... will prove excellent.

Cash For Needlework

Further information can be obtained from Grant Duggins, home economics exhibit supervisor, California State Fair, P. O. Box 2036, Sacramento.

Janet Biggs, Carmichael, poses with one of her Corriedale sheep that she will enter in the 4-H Livestock Division at the California State Fair in Sacramento. Over 1100 head of sheep, cattle and swine have been entered in the 4-H Division this year, as compared with last year's total of 972. The fair, which opens September 3 for an 11-day run, will have Spike Jones and Phil Harris headlining the night shows, and 41 of California's 58 counties are setting up exhibits in the vast Counties Building.

FAIR HORSE SHOW IS LARGEST ON COAST

The horse show at the California State Fair will provide comedy, thrills and beautiful spectacles this year. The largest horse show on the Pacific Coast, it will have hunters, stock horses, draft teams, gaited animals, open races for children and musical chairs. There will be evening performances, eight afternoon and one morning show.

The Counties Building at the State Fair, locale of spectacular county exhibits, foreign countries and the wine industry show, already has been lavishly decorated in preparation for the 1953 fair, which runs from September 3 through 13. The J. L. Stuart Company of San Francisco did the gargantuan job.

Misbehaving Motorists

According to the weekly report, the following persons were awful of the department of vehicles recently: Anible Fernandez, 162 B street, Colma, suspended; and John Allen Green, 166 Santa Cruz avenue, Daly City.

Robert Fuller of Colma has his license returned permanently.

RELICS OF PAST FAIRS

Among those who have responded to the State Fair's call for location of relics of past fairs are Mrs. Lucy J. Turner and Charles Mack, both of Sacramento. Mrs. Turner has a silver plate presented to her sister by General Shafter in 1882 for baking the best loaf of bread, while Mack displayed a souvenir pin of the 1895 fair. Premium books and lists of winners of the 1854 fair also have been found.

BIG DAHLIA, LITTLE GIRL! Small Peggy Benkover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Benkover of San Mateo, finds a flower almost as large as she is when she previews the floral exhibit at the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta. Fair dates August 14 through 22.

KPIX Now Using 100,000 Watt Power For Broadcasting

Television viewers in this area began enjoying the advantages of maximum power allowed television stations, when KPIX, San Francisco, operating on channel 5, began regular telecasting with 100,000 watts on August 6.

Reports coming in from preliminary tests, conducted by KPIX engineers indicate decided reception improvement in outlying Northern California areas where heretofore reception proved inadequate and in many so called shaded areas relatively close to the KPIX transmitter.

There are also reports of satisfactory KPIX signal pick up in areas in which television could not be received previously.

Some of the counties from which these reports of improved picture quality have been received include Sonoma, Lake, Sutter, Sacramento, Stanislaus, San Joaquin, Merced, San Benito and Monterey.

In increasing its power by more than five times, 16,700 watts to 100,000 watts, it is estimated satisfactory reception area for KPIX will expand from 6,000 to 14,000 square miles.

Population within this new service area totals to more than 3,600,000 people, an increase of over a million.

Installation of the new 35,000 watt General Electric amplifier which enabled KPIX to telecast on 100,000 watts began with delivery of the equipment less than a month ago.

Engineers who made the installation stated that it took only three weeks from the date the new amplifier was delivered to the first full load tests conducted last week—one of the fastest installations of its type ever made.

Telecasting on 100,000 watts marks the completion of modernization plans, originated a year ago when the KPIX transmitter was moved from the Mark Hopkins hotel to the new Mount Sutro site, 1368 feet above sea level.

With studios housed in the modern television center, erected a little more than a year ago, and telecasting with maximum power, KPIX facilities today are the finest in Northern California.

Roadside Chain Sign

A GOOD looking chain sign, located near the curb or roadside, can be an effective way of selling products or services. The sign may be made at little expense of materials obtained from any lumber yard.

In the sign illustrated, the materials used were a 4 by 4-inch post, tapered to a point; a Masonite Presidwood product known as Tempered Duolux, which is 3/16" thick and smooth on both sides; an iron angle for suspending the signs, and pieces of light chain for fastening them together.

The Tempered Duolux, after being primed and painted, may be lettered with a sales message. Of course, the post and other parts of the installation should be painted too, and the portion of the post in the ground should first be treated with creosote or a similar preservative.

The dark squares at the right are painted with a slate material. Use chalk to mark the prices of the commodities or services offered.
